Activities, Bargains, Community Service

University Women’s Club

By Nancy Wardwell

The University Women’s Club has provided friendship, educational, cultural, and social activities for its members for 127 years! It supports scholarships for OSU students and provides service opportunity and support to the University and the Greater Columbus community. Funds for its many activities come from the famous Buckeye Bargains Thrift Shop (opened in 1966), from member contributions, and from other sponsored fundraisers.

The University Women’s Club was founded in 1895 by Flavia Canfield, wife of the fourth president of Ohio State, James Canfield. The founding was set in an interesting period that saw the beginnings of the suffrage movement – and the establishment of many organizations for women – the result of an international effort to organize clubs for women. Flavia organized at least 26 such clubs in Columbus alone! She began with 60 women, the wives of the all-male OSU faculty, and named the group “The Women’s Faculty Club.” The women were inspired to advocate for their own advancement – and for the betterment of the community. In 1896 the officers signed a petition against expectorating on Columbus streetcars. They took their concerns to Ohio’s Board of Health, ultimately leading to the prohibition of the “injurious habit.” (The streetcars are gone but, sadly, the “habit” seems to have returned!)

For decades, membership was limited to faculty wives. Women’s lives and roles have shifted and these days even University affiliation is not a requirement but many still have relationships with OSU. The UWC embraces a policy of inclusivity, welcoming all interested women.

In addition to its service, scholarship, and fundraising mission the UWC sponsors 24 interest groups, ranging from Active Adventurers and Art to Wine Tasting and Yarn & Stitches. Yes, there is also Bridge, Music, and much more.

AND - they are not alone. In Europe and U.S. many universities have women’s clubs and there are reciprocal agreements among them. Closer to home, in the Big Ten, almost every university has an active women’s club – and a biennial conference is held – and of course, members from OSU Women’s Club participate.

The University Women’s Club may have its roots in a much different time, but it has grown with time and has changed with the needs of women. It continues to attract vital women who serve our University – and the greater community.

This article raised a number topics for further research. The UWC has a very thorough history online. It is filled with a who’s who in the university community for 127 years. The Progressive Era saw the growth of social, educational, and fraternal organizations. Look online with your computer or tablet.

Hello,

February is the sweetest month. Valentine’s Day gifts, whether from a beau or treats you’ve bought yourself, can give you a lift. Not to mention the fun of various February “2s” such as 2-2-22 or 2-22-22.

There’s love everywhere you look. A classic romance is Giselle. The Cultural Arts bunch will shed a tear as the young Giselle is rejected by the deceitful nobleman Albrecht. But never fret, Giselle gets her own back in Act II! Register by February 3 to get tickets to the February 11 show (details in the Calendar).

Need to get your blood moving? Try the Dinner Series on February 24, when Herb Asher will give an update on the political landscape. Herb gives a wry view of the foibles of both parties. He’ll share updates on the battle to select a new Senator, draw a new campaign map, and who knows what. Registration is open for the Faculty Club event.

Don’t forget that mid-winter can be very tough for some of us. One friend cursed February. She hated it as a gloomy, dreary stretch that she had to live through. She hibernated with a lamp that mimicked the sun. It was the first time I had come across seasonal affective disorder (SAD).

Whether you’re suffering from SAD, feeling winter blues, or grumbling about another swing in the weather, reach out to friends. Check the online Directory for ways to contact them. If you have not updated your own listing this would be the time! Helpful documents from OSURA.osu.edu/Directory will walk you through it.

Remember, we’ll see the world come alive in the next few weeks. Birds back, snowdrops peeking, trees budding. I wish you well until then.

MEMBER SPOTLIGHT:
Gail and Steve Summerhill

We were born and raised, as Mike Myers says with his usual irony, in “the Great White North,” Gail in Montreal and Steve in Toronto. We met in Toronto, were married after undergraduate studies, and moved to the United States to begin graduate studies in Spanish Literature at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. A Ph.D. followed, and Steve started teaching at Purdue. After a couple of years, we came to Ohio State where we stayed for a very long time: 38 years! Gail got her B.A. in Latin American Studies in 1985 and worked for the OSU commemorative program of the Quincentenary of the “Discovery” (really the invasion) of America celebrated in 1992. She later became Assistant to the Chair in the Department of History and worked happily at the University for 24 years.

Steve, too, was happy at Ohio State. Indeed, he still says that because he loved teaching so much, he never worked a day in his life. Over the years, besides his teaching and research, he served in several administrative positions. He was Assistant Dean of Humanities, a member of the Midwest Universities Consortium for International Activities (MUCIA), and Assistant Vice Provost for International Affairs. Later, in the early 1990s, he became chair of the Department of Spanish and Portuguese, and subsequently served a year as Interim Chair of the Department of Slavic and East European Languages and Cultures. Although he is proud of his contributions to all these areas, he is especially proud of promoting and achieving greater student participation in study-abroad programs while at the Office of International Affairs. Study abroad exposes students to the challenge and pleasure of living in a foreign country while expanding their linguistic horizon. The maturity that inevitably comes from immersing oneself in a foreign culture helps us reach our best potential.

Steve and Gail have three children, all of whom graduated from Ohio State. The oldest, Laura Deeter, is a Professor of Horticulture at Ohio State ATI in Wooster, Ohio. She and Steve may be the only father-daughter pair to win the Alumni Distinguished Teaching Award at Ohio State. Our son, Mike, is a successful attorney in Chicago and our youngest, Katie Smith, lives on a boat with her husband Ben, also an OSU alum.

They moved to St. Augustine several years ago to keep an eye on “the old geezers.” We retired from Ohio State in 2011 and moved to St. Augustine, Florida in 2014. We admit that we were most attracted to the Spanish heritage of the city even though Florida became part of the U.S. 200 years ago and the city is now a thoroughly American tourist attraction. But certain monuments and other signs of Spain are indelibly stamped onto the city, including two extraordinary stone forts that defended against periodic British attacks on Spanish Florida. Also, the original Spanish town plan dominates the downtown, with long narrow streets that are 450 years old and made invasion difficult. We also have a beautiful main square with the local cathedral on one side and the government building on another. The main square boasts a large obelisk built to commemorate the Spanish constitution of 1812, which was the most liberal of Spanish history until banned by the king when he usurped power a year or two later. He demanded that all obelisks be destroyed throughout the empire, but the city refused and ours is now said to be the only one left.

After retirement in Columbus, Gail volunteered at the Worthington Food Pantry. Since moving to St. Augustine, we both volunteer at the Research Library of the St. Augustine Historical Society. Gail digitizes old post cards of St. Augustine, and Steve translates Spanish documents from the early history of the city. Steve says that more than the language, the handwriting is the most difficult part of the task. Additionally, in 2019 Gail and her then twelve-year-old granddaughter, Abby Summerhill, published Ducklings on the Run, a sweet little children’s book based on a real story that happened to the two of them. It also has wonderful illustrations by the daughter of a Columbus friend of Gail. In 2020, Steve and a close Cuban friend, Reynaldo Jiménez, published an excellent Spanish version with the title Patitos al Escape. The OSURA Newsletter is always a welcome arrival in the mail and keeps us informed about events and situations on and off campus. In the early days of retirement, we loved to travel and did so quite a bit. The pandemic put a lid on that, but we hope to resume our travels once the health risks return to normal. In the meantime, we would love to hear from fellow Buckeyes and offer them a little introductory tour of America’s oldest European city. It has great charm and many interesting sites to see.

STRS News
By Jerry Newsom

In late December the Dispatch had another article on the proposed change in how STRS does its investments. A new company called QED Management would partner with STRS in a complex process, with details lacking. In the Dispatch article, the founder of QED accused STRS staff of misdeeds and a cover-up, although any evidence was not presented. Healthcare and Pension Advocates for STRS (HPA), with representatives of different constituencies of Ohio public teachers, met with two proponents of the proposed partnership to hear a few more details. Many questions remained unanswered, plus HPA members lack the expertise to evaluate such complex financial transactions anyway, so as expected it declined to endorse the proposal. Several OSURA members have expressed their concern that the proposal threatens the viability of STRS, but considering that a sizable majority of the Board is on record against it and both staff and consultants oppose it, its chances of being adopted appear negligible.

With the strong investment returns STRS has had recently, the STRS Board obviously feels their financial situation is such that they can responsibly provide some relief to both active teachers and retirees. Although a final decision is unlikely to happen until spring, the options presently under consideration mostly involve a 2% one-time increase in STRS pensions. Short of a downturn in the economy in the next few months, we are likely to see such an increase, even if it is significantly less than the rate of inflation.

A final note for participants in a defined contribution (DC) retirement plan (such as the ARP): the contribution that employers make to STRS for these participants (the “mitigating rate”) should drop from 4.47% of salary to 2.91%. This will cost STRS about $13 million annually (tiny compared to the $7 billion STRS pays in pensions each year) and will likely increase the amount that goes into the DC plan of active participating teachers.

OPERS News
By Darian Torrance

The OPERS Board did not meet in December, 2021. However, OPERS has sent several PERSpective blogs to members during this time on Facebook and through the OPERS website. Members can subscribe to PERSpective blog messages by going to this web link: https://perspective.opers.org/index.php/category/ohio-pers/.

Benefit Schedule Set for 2022
This blog details the benefit schedule for 2022. Payments will usually be made on the first business day of each month, unless that day is a weekend day or holiday. Then, the payment will be sent on the last business day of the previous month. The only exception to this rule is in January, when the payment is issued on the first business day of the month (January 3). The complete schedule for 2022 is available at this link: https://perspective.opers.org/index.php/2021/12/28/benefit-schedule-set-for-2022/.

Enrollment, Health Reimbursement Arrangement Issues
For answers about open enrollment, HRA reimbursement, and other health care questions, see this link: https://perspective.opers.org/index.php/2021/12/07/answers-to-health-care-2022-questions-7/. The comments section to the blog (at the bottom of the blog) is particularly enlightening. Answers to members’ questions in this section provide additional details about the health care enrollment process.

OPERS Rates Highly Among Peers
CEM Benchmarking reports that OPERS is considered a low-to medium-cost pension administrator with high service levels. Read more about this at: https://perspective.opers.org/index.php/2022/01/11/opers-rates-highly-among-peers/.

OPERS also has a Facebook page that members can join (https://www.facebook.com/OhioPERS). A review of the comments on this page shows that many pre-Medicare retirees have had a less than satisfactory experience working through the transition from group insurance to the new HRA arrangement and finding individual insurance through Via Benefits or the Insurance Marketplace. Retirees have experienced exceptionally long wait times waiting for help from a Via Benefits representative, and some members report that they have received conflicting information from Via Benefits. Members report confusion, frustration and a lack of understanding of the complex rules surrounding HRAs to help them select the best insurance at a reasonable price.

Thanks and Congratulations OSU Retirees!

The University reached its goal of 1.3 million dollars and generous Retirees donated a whopping $83,890 to Bucks for Charity!

It’s that Time –

Time to think of members to nominate to be the next leaders of OSURA!

If you know of someone (yourself maybe) please let an officer know, and they will pass the name on to the Nominating Committee!

Caregiving Resources

Below is a link to a new program from the Scripps Gerontology Center at Miami University. This program, called “Our Family Our Way,” is to help families organize to provide services and support to a family member. I thought that it might be helpful to those who are just starting to provide care. I think it would help prevent burnout for the primary caregiver.

Here is the link: https://miamioh.edu/cas/academics/centers/scripps/research/ofow/index.html.
WE MADE A PUSH IN DECEMBER to get a lot of donations to the student food insecurity fund, and the response exceeded our expectations. Since these donations are being matched, this brings us much closer to the $100,000 needed to establish an endowment at Ohio State. December contributions of $10,095, plus $5,100 matching from donations in previous months, added $15,195 to the fund. We also now have nearly $11,000 due from the matching funds. That will bring us to within about $12,000 of our goal. We greatly appreciate our generous donors who got us here.
