It's Greek to Me

By Nancy Wardwell

Who knew – that the OSURA Book Club format is rooted in Classical Greek Theater?

The OSURA Book Club is one of our longest-running programs, and meetings were announced beginning with the first OSURA Newsletter! The group met in members' homes and the earliest was in the home of Ed and Virginia Allen – they discussed favorite Balzac novels. The group continued to meet in various member homes until October 2005 when finding a permanent meeting place was discussed. The next meeting – and many more to come – was held in the Party House of Carriage Place – where the Hill condo happened to be located.

Lee Hill explains that members suggest as many as 50 different books to be chosen for the year's reading list. The eight chosen books appear in an engaging photograph in our September newsletter and the photo includes a carefully chosen "creature."

Then a change became necessary. In-person meetings became impossible. COVID-19 hit, Dick Hill's health became challenging – and the "Party House" was no longer available.

Enter Cindi Hill – who reminded her mother, Lee, that she had always introduced the discussions with her own thoughts about the book being considered – her soliloquy – and voila - the Greek Theater format enabled the Book Club to become one of few programs that was able to engage members during The Pandemic!

Cue the Chorus: After her soliloquy each meeting, Lee would throw the discussion open to everyone to say whatever they wished – a Chorus was formed!

As Lee writes: "The play format has proven to be beneficial in unimagined ways. It means that any member, wherever they are in the world, can still participate to any degree they wish – by email!"

Someone recently suggested that it is time to stop lamenting the effects of the COVID pandemic. Agreed – and one of the improvements we all experienced is our enhanced digital communication skills – enabling our long-standing Book Club to move from the traditional living room discussions to a format where everyone, everywhere, can participate, with time to develop ideas, in most creative ways! Opa!!

FROM: The President

Sally Dellinger

her comments and I had nothing to do with her desire to do this.

I have struggled about sharing this with you but we have been experiencing some disheartening change to our beloved cabin in Michigan. The cabin, which we have had for 40-plus years is located across from acres of state land. Well, on one of our recent trips north we were crushed to see our woods being decimated. It just doesn't make sense at this time of climate change to rid our earth of the trees that are the key to our environment and life in general. Wait..... Sadie, our miniature schnauzer, just came in and wants to have input on this matter. Here are

• “OK...here, I go. From the start,
• my Moms have really been
• upset. They contacted the
• DNR for more information and
• to express their distress at
• the decision to clear-cut. The
• spokesperson provided no plan
• to replant or to remove the
• debris. Needless to say, that
• discussion did not go well. The
• reasoning they provided did not
• match the mission statement
• for the organization.

• But enough about them. Let
• me tell you how I feel. The
• slash that the lumbering
• has created, which won't be
• removed, has created problems

• for me. Do you know how difficult it is for a short-legged dog like myself to get
• to the trails? I used to be able to walk across the street right into my woods
• to the green trails. That's what we call the trails that are covered with moss.
• Boy, were they a treat! I am also concerned about my friends.....the black
• squirrels, chipmunks, deer, pileated woodpeckers, barred owls, raccoons, and
• others. Say, have you ever heard a barred owl? At night if you hear “Who
• cooks for you?” – that's a barred owl. And those pileated woodpeckers, what
• magnificent birds. Each of my friends have been displaced. Their homes have
• been either uprooted, trashed, or removed. They have let me know that they'll
• be fine, but I will miss them, and I hate to see them struggle. What's happened
• is kind of like some of the lyrics in Joni Mitchell's song – Big Yellow Taxi. I'm not • going to sing this to you, but you'll get the gist. Here are a couple of lines that
• describe my feelings to what has happened.

• They paved paradise ...and put up a parking lot.

• Don't it always seem to go

• That you don't know what you've got

• Till it's gone

• We knew what we had...the DNR did not.”

Why? ...Why?

OSURA
Spotlight

Mary Anne Herbst

Meet Mary Anne Herbst!

Columbus has been my home for most, but not all, of my life. I was born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin but came to Columbus when I was about five years old. After graduating from Bishop Watterson High School in Clintonville—where I am still living—I went to Bliss Business College in Columbus and studied court recording. My career at OSU began in 1968 when I began as Clerk Steno in the College of Commerce (now the Fisher College of Business), in the Faculty of Finance department. I stayed in that department as an Administrative Assistant until my retirement in 2000. While working, I took advantage of the Bridge Program which allowed staff to take college courses for free. I took five different courses over five quarters. A highlight before retiring was the move from old Hagerty Hall after 29 years into the new Fisher College. What a difference that was!

I met my husband, Gary while playing volleyball with a singles group and we have been married since 1979. Together, we have traveled with OSURA internationally to Sicily, Switzerland, Wales, Austria,

England and Ireland over the years. I have taken many day and overnight trips with OSURA also, the last being to see the lights at Oglebay Park in WV. It was great reconnecting to retirees with whom I had flown internationally and meeting many other OSU retirees.

OSURA is very important to me as it lets me stay in touch with old and new retirees and keeps me busy. Soon after retiring, I attended an Annual Meeting at the Faculty Club. Fern Hunt asked if I would like to be on the Friendship Committee. I agreed and have been on this fun committee ever since, serving as Chair for a few years. In addition, I was asked to be on the Social Committee and became Chair for about 5 years. I am still on this committee helping with getting speakers for the Lunch Bunch and working at the reception desk for Fall Conference and Annual Meeting events. I joined the Craft Group a few years ago when that group got started. We made a variety of crafts (blankets and Christmas trees, wrote letters of encouragement to cancer patients) and gave them to hospitals and assisted living homes. We also purchased houseplants and brought our own planters and took home arrangements we made.

I still meet with high school classmates for lunches throughout Ohio and have stayed in touch with some OSU retirees that I worked with for lunches, celebrating birthdays and holidays. I am fortunate that my health has been so that I am able to do all that I do and look forward to continuing being with my OSU friends in a variety of events here and abroad.

Expect your Bucks for Charity material in the mail very soon!

It is another way to share with the community agencies that make central Ohio great!

Again, last year, retirees were very generous.

Of all the units and organizations who gave through Bucks for Charity, retirees were among the most generous. Thank you, in advance!

On September 8 OSURA offered a very helpful Technology Information Session. A group of Occupational Therapy students skillfully taught useful functions of our iPhones.

From the Finance Committee

By Jerry Newsom

A history of the income and expenditures for OSURA since we joined the Alumni Association is given below. Some explanations are in order. Numbers can fluctuate widely from one year to the next for a couple reasons. Occasionally we've had an expensive travel/cultural arts event, where OSURA pays up front for accommodations in one fiscal year and we receive the registration fees the following year. Also, sponsors for the annual conference are usually invoiced in the spring and some years most send their money before June 30 and sometimes it's after July 1, so the total amount received in one fiscal year can vary considerably.

Nationally, organizations such as ours generally have about a 3% drop in membership each year, and that is happening to OSURA too. Income from dues can still bounce around if we get several lifetime memberships in one year (bless them). Note the increasing amounts in Certificate of Deposit, Money Market, and endowment income. The endowment funds are invested by Ohio State and each year 4.5% of the average value over the previous five years is made available to support OSURA programs. Since the investments over time average well above a 4.5% return, the value of the fund should grow to compensate for inflation. That trend should continue, compensating for reduced annual dues. "Other expenses" includes accounting fees, liability insurance, Faculty Club dues, and the annual meeting.

As inflation increases our costs, increased donations by our members, as shown below, have been important in keeping us solvent. The current use account is the same one where dues are deposited. Some annual members donate more than the minimum $25 and some lifetime members also contribute. (Before FY 2021, we received donations to the current use account six months after the donations were made, so prior to that year the donations and income to OSURA differed.) The quasi-endowment is like a regular endowment except we can borrow some of the investment should we have a cash flow problem, but we've never needed that yet. After the great success OSURA had in raising over $100,000 for the student food insecurity endowment, it is gratifying to see members' generosity now being applied to OSURA funds, as shown by the nearly $15,000 donated last year.

Time to Renew!

To help you remember to renew your Annual Membership, letters will arrive soon. The cost remains at $25, but this year we're suggesting rounding up to $40 to honor OSURA's four decades of service to us all. The calendar will be full of presentations, travel and cultural events, as well as monthly special interest meetings. And don't forget, membership includes the OSURA News via US Mail or online.

To join early, see the OSURA.osu.edu website.
